

Nomination Form for the
Robert E. Scully Young Investigator Award
Annual award for the best scientific article published in the *International Journal of Gynecological Pathology

Eligibility: The eligible candidate must be a Resident, Fellow-in Training in Pathology or a certified pathologist, 40 years of age or younger at the time of submission of the manuscript and must be the lead author on the manuscript.

Contribution: The article must be published in the International Journal of Gynecological Pathology in the calendar year prior to the Annual Business Meeting at which the Award is announced (i.e., in 2008, the Committee will award the best scientific article published in one of the 2007 journals).

Award: The annual award will have a value of $1,000US. It will be announced and presented during the Annual Scientific Session of the International Society of Gynecological Pathologists, currently held as a companion meeting at the annual USCAP Meeting. Preferably the winner will receive the award in person, but this is not a requirement.

Nomination: The candidate must be nominated by a current member of the International Society of Gynecological Pathologists. Self-nominations are not permitted. The nominator does not have to be a co-author of the manuscript.
